

Navy Holds for A-Power in Carriers

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy believes U.S. atomic know-how is moving ahead so rapidly that before long it will be dollar-foolish to build surface warships with fuel oil engines rather than nuclear power plants.

It is supported by the Atomic Energy Commission, which effect touched off the current dispute between the Defense Department and the Navy.

Many months ago, it was learned, AEC Chairman Glenn Seaborg suggested to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara that nuclear power costs were coming down and that the Pentagon should give thought to wider application of atomic power to surface vessels.

The Navy may have lost the first battle—but with powerful backing on Capitol Hill it may yet win the war.

Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth's abrupt resignation, announced Monday, appears the tipoff that McNamara probably will deny the Navy permission to install nuclear engines in a new aircraft carrier for which Congress last year voted $280 million.

Naming Nitze May Trigger Explosion

By JACK BELL
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's appointment of a new Navy secretary may set off a chain reaction leading to congressional explosion over a tentative Pentagon decision to deny the Navy any more nuclear carriers.

When Paul H. Nitze, named Monday to succeed Fred Korth, comes before the Senate for confirmation, it seems certain he will be asked for his views on the continuing controversy over whether carriers should be phased out in favor of missiles and missile-firing submarines.

Korth, who said he was resigning to "attend to my pressing private affairs," probably will be asked to explain if his decision had any connection with his apparently futile efforts to get a new nuclear carrier built.

Associates said his defeat in the nuclear power argument sped his decision to quit.

Some Congress members said they thought Korth's action stemmed from the row over the controversial TFX warplane contract award, and Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., said Korth will be questioned again about it.

Korth has told the Senate Investigations subcommittee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., that a bank he formerly headed in Fort Worth, Tex., joined several others in making a loan to the General Dynamics Corp.

General Dynamics was given the TFX contract by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara despite a claim by the Boeing Co. that it could produce the TFX — tactical fighter, experimental — cheaper. Korth supported the award to General Dynamics.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said he thinks there will be no serious opposition to confirmation of Nitze, who now is assistant secretary of defense for international affairs. He was named to the post by Kennedy in 1961.

The nomination of Nitze, 55, will go to the Senate Armed Services Committee.

In announcing the Navy switch the White House disclosed that Korth wrote his resignation last Friday—the same day he persuaded McNamara to reconsider a tentative decision against permitting the Navy to install nuclear engines in its new supercarrier.

He Had No. 1 Excuse for the Judge

KANSAS CITY (AP)—James W. Cherry had to forfeit a $5,000 bond Monday because he couldn't appear in court on a charge of receiving stolen goods.

He was in custody at Atlanta, Ga., charged with the $11,000 holdup last week of a J. C. Penny store.

U.S. District Judge Floyd R. Gibson ordered the bond forfeited. Cherry was arrested last May at Kansas City and charged with receiving 13 mink stoles and jackets taken from the M. M. Cohn Co. at Little Rock April 14 last year.

Point of Ethics Raised on Senate Employee Who Mixed Business, Politics

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. senators are showing concern about ethics.

The immediate case is that of an employee of the Senate, now resigned. It has revived a suggestion that it might be a good idea for senators to adopt a conflict-of-interest code for themselves.

In the case at hand, Robert G. Baker stands accused of using his Senate connections, while he was secretary of the Senate's Democratic majority, to help land business for a private firm.

The Senate Rules Committee this week begins an inquiry into whether Baker did permit himself an improper conflict of interest.

It would be wrong, of course, for anybody in a position of public trust to trade on that post to make money for himself.

That's the basic principle behind the Senate's traditional insistence that men named to high public office, such as cabinet members, divest themselves of private interests when they come into the government.

Should the same principle be applied rigidly to members of Congress when they vote? Should a senator who owns a farm, for example, feel free to vote increased price supports for crops he raises? Or, if he's a railroad stockholder, should he stand aside on a bill designed to help the railroads?

Occasionally, a member will stand aside. For example, on Feb. 27, 1958, Sens. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., and J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., both asked to be excused from voting on a postal rate bill.

The bill dealt with mail charges paid by newspapers and they explained, they both had in-

Stamps Mill Construction November 1

STAMPS, Ark. (AP) — A strong money-raising drive plus a federal loan have assured Stamps of a $2 million steel melting furnace and rolling mill.

Residents of the Stamps area raised $150,425 through the sale of bonds, and the owner of the Oklahoma Steel Co. of Oklahoma City said work on the furnace and mill will begin about Nov. 1.

W. H. Hoster, the owner, said the facility will be operated by the Magnolia Steel Corp.

The plant will be on a 75-acre site on the south edge of Stamps. The mill will employ 108 persons at first with a payroll of $700,000. Eventually 158 persons will be employed, with a payroll of $1 million.

The federal government will provide $977,763 through an Area Development Administration loan. Magnolia Steel Corp. will put up $75,212 and set up financing the rest of the cost of the plant.

The plant will be an electric steel melting furnace and rolling mill to produce a full range of concrete reinforcing bars. The mill will utilize steel scrap and local iron ore.

The plant will produce 6,000 tons of bars per month and a plant spokesman said buyers for 4,000 pounds a month had already been found.

Officials said the plant would use two million cubic feet of oxygen per month, offering potential for establishment of an oxygen plant.

The plant will also use 7,000 tons of scrap steel per month and several hundred tons of limestone.

Byrd Unsold on Kennedy Tax Package

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon began the job today of selling President Kennedy's tax cut package to what may be the toughest customer on Capitol Hill—Sen. Harry F. Byrd and his Senate Finance Committee.

After waiting through 20 days of closed hearings, Dillon appeared today with a thick sheaf of facts and figures that stressed a need for urgency in approving the $11 billion reduction this year.

Said Dillon, "It is essential to the well-being of the nation that every effort be made to complete action on this bill before the end of the current year . . . the nation has waited too long for relief from the stifling burden of excess taxes."

Byrd, the Virginia Democrat called by many "the watchdog of the Treasury," opposes a tax cut without balancing cuts in spending. He prefers to hold up action on the cut until the 1964 session to put pressure on Kennedy to put the brakes on the budget.

Dillon argued strongly against this.

"The need for a major program of tax reduction and revision is pressing," he said. "I firmly believe that to delay its passage would incur serious economic risks."

The President says the tax cut would give families extra money to buy dishwashers or make a down payment on a new car, plants money to buy new equipment, and free more money for investment. This, he and his advisers say, will put the economy in high gear, and also bring in more taxes ultimately.

In his statement, packed with charts on what the reduction would do for taxpayers, Dillon said the bill as approved by the House will do the job with one exception—the treatment of capital gains.

"Because of the urgency of prompt action, I recommend that the committee eliminate the provisions of the bill dealing with capital gains," said Dillon.

His comments were in a prepared statement. If the bill becomes fully effective, it would remove 1.5 million low-income families from the tax rolls, and mean cuts of $100 for four-person families earning $5,000 a year, $202 for a similar family with a $10,000 a year income, $1,004 for a $30,000 a year family, and $5,278 for a $100,000 family.

Polls Close on Election in Korea

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — South Korea elected a president today, choosing between strongman Chung Hee Park and Yun Po-sun, whose party charged election fraud and accused the military of brokering voters.

As the polls closed, Park issued a statement asserting the election was conducted in "the most peaceful balloting atmosphere in Korea's history." He appeared confident of victory.

Yun's Civil Rule party immediately raised charges that might enable them to challenge the validity of the election, which was called under U.S. prodding after more than two years of rule by Park's military junta.

Yun's supporters charged ballots cast for Yun were being torn intentionally—and thus invalidated — by pro-government officials and that Park's supporters pressured voters in the polling stations.

Officials estimated about 77 per cent of the nation's nearly 13 million voters turned out. About 80 per cent is considered fair.

Because ballots must be tabulated by hand and many counting stations are isolated, significant returns are not expected before Wednesday morning.

Boy Goes Off to College and Finds Studying Food Points Picks Up Appetite

By JOY STILEY

NEW YORK (AP) — We sent our son off to college to educate his mind. But what seems to have gotten educated is his palate.

For the first 17 years of his life, Brenn's taste in food was simple—and definite. A firm believer in togetherness, he wanted everything cooked separately, served separately and eaten separately.

He liked meat, he liked potatoes and he liked vegetables. But put them all together in a casserole and he turned frowns down.

Peas — fine; carrots — great; peas and carrots — no thanks. In fact, he used to erect invisible barriers on his plate between the various foods. He'd finish one item before starting the next and would even surreptitiously wipe his fork on his napkin in between if he thought I wasn't looking.

It was with misgivings that we placed his dietary fate in the hands of dormitory cooks 1,600 miles away.

In steady of expected "save our son" messages and urgent requests for CARE packages, we received glowing reports on the quality and quantity of the food.

The cafeteria was operated under a point system, with each resident entitled to 20 units per day. Breakfast was to use four units, lunch 7½ and dinner the remaining 8½. Every dish had a unit value.

By the time Brenn got through figuring out how to get the choice of foods and points per meal within hailing distance of each other he must have worked up quite an appetite.

Gradually references to food crept into his letters: He and some other fellows had gone out for pizza; the tuna fish salad was tasty; he liked the chicken pie.

Even so, I wasn't quite prepared for his homecoming. We had meatballs and spaghetti for lunch, and as usual I had cooked his separately, spaghetti unaccompanied by sauce.

"Mother," said Brenn in disgust, "Why don't you mix this stuff all up like they do at school and put a whole lot of sauce on it. Must you cook everything so plain?"

Hal Boyle is on vacation.

Chancellor Adenauer Steps Down

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

BONN, Germany (AP)—Konrad Adenauer bade farewell to the West German Parliament as chancellor today, saying his dream of a reunited Germany is possible only with the help of friends abroad.

It was a solemn hour for the man who had been West Germany's only chancellor in the 14 years of rebuilding from the ruins of World War II. In dark coat and striped trousers, he listened soberly to praise from Eugen Gerstenmaier, president of the Bundestag.

"Today," Gerstenmaier concluded, "the German Bundestag rises to you, Mr. Federal Chancellor, to announce thankfully to the German people:

"Konrad Adenauer has earned the gratitude of the Fatherland."

The Bundestag president read a short letter from President Heinrich Lübke, accepting the resignation of the 87-year-old chancellor.

Then Adenauer spoke of the dream that never was realized, the reunion of West Germany with Communist-ruled East Germany.

"A solution is not possible between ourselves and our opponents alone," he said, "but only with the help of our friends, and thank God, we have friends in the world again."

By opponents, he meant the Russians, who still occupy East Germany and have set up a Communist regime for its 17 million inhabitants.

Adenauer said that reunification could be seen on the horizon if Germans are watchful, cautious and patient.

"I am convinced that it will come," Adenauer said, "because unity cannot be denied to a people like the Germans when they want to create it in peace."

Adenauer has one more day in office. He will remain as acting chancellor until the Bundestag elects Ludwig Erhard, the vice chancellor.

In a talk with reporters Monday, Adenauer had disclosed he felt the goal of reunifying Germany had been set back by warming relations between the

Europe Will Arbitrate Chicken War

By NEL SLIS

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The European Common Market backed down today and agreed to submit its chicken war with the United States to an impartial panel for settlement.

The European Ministerial Council, ruling body of the six-nation trade group, accepted an American proposal that the issue involved in the shipment of American frozen poultry to Western Europe be examined by a group of foreign trade experts.

The ministers, representing France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg, deferred their decision to a drafting committee before final action on a text this afternoon, according to Common Market sources.

Under the American proposal, each side would nominate an expert, and a third member of the panel would be named by the international trade organization known as the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade with headquarters in Geneva.

The panel would look into U.S. claims that the overseas sales of American poultrymen have been damaged to the tune of $46 million by the Common Market's tariffs. The U.S. government has been plugging for a reduction in European tariffs on American frozen poultry.

The Americans already have declined a 10-per cent cut in European duties as "small and uncertain."

The current European levy is 13.43 cents a pound. According to U.S. officials, this has cut deeply into U.S. shipments to the Common Market, particularly to West Germany.

Soil Tests Preliminary to New Dam

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Army Engineers said Monday a series of tests to determine the best materials for use in Arkansas River construction projects will be completed next week.

The tests have been underway since Sept. 9 on a special site on the east bank of the river near Rob Roy in Jefferson County.

A series of piles were driven into the ground, then tested for stress. They will be pulled next week to determine their condition.

H. A. Rabjohn, assistant chief of the foundations and materials branch of the Army Engineers' Little Rock District, said the results of the tests would be used in verifying the design of Lock and Dam No. 1.

Bids on that project are to be opened Oct. 29.

The dam will be built on the Arkansas Post Canal, which will connect the Arkansas and White rivers.

Parents of U.S. Dead See Mrs. Nhu

NEW YORK (AP)—The parents and sister of an American lieutenant killed in South Vietnam called today on Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, the controversial First Lady of that land.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cramer and their daughter, Nancy, 19, of Wantagh on Long Island, visited Mrs. Nhu in her hotel suite at her invitation. They spent about a halfhour together.

"It was mainly Mrs. Nhu expressing her sympathy to us over the loss of our son," said Cramer, an employee of the Federal Aviation Agency.

Addressing a Harvard audience Monday, Mrs. Nhu, sister-in-law of South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem, said that Diem's request for the United States to reduce its personnel in Saigon brought instead 3,000 more Americans there.

Diem sought only to cut the expense of the war against Communist guerrillas, she said, and she was amazed when it was interpreted by some Americans as a "kind of America-gone-home campaign."

"Americans bring their houses on their backs. . . They do not live like us. . . austere as us. . . They live at great expense," she said.

These remarks prompted hissing from the audience, but this was mild compared with the racket made by 150 chanting, hooting, door-banging pickets outside. Mrs. Nhu ignored the hecklers.

2 Outposts Are Retaken by Algiers

ALGIERS (AP)—Algiers Radio claimed today that Algerian forces have recaptured two desert outposts taken by Moroccan troops Monday.

The Algerians said Moroccan troops supported by tanks, planes and heavy artillery swept up to 60 miles over the border Monday in the area of Hassi-Belda and Tinjoub, the outposts.

The Algerian government never officially admitted that the two places fell to the Moroccan invaders. But today, the radio announcer said in a triumphant voice:

"Our forces have cleared the invaders from Hassi-Belda and Tinjoub."

The broadcast said the Moroccan forces were bringing in heavy reinforcements. It alleged that some of the Moroccan troops were airlifted to the fighting area in planes piloted by American airmen, members of a U.S. military training detachment with the Royal Moroccan Air Force.

million. The Navy is not talking about the studies it made to support its bid for the new carrier and, beyond that, for all future warships heavier than 8,000 tons.

But certain members of Congress are aware of the Navy findings, and the matter may come out on the public record if hearings are held.

Cost is a pivotal factor both on the issue of the carriers' future as a weapon either conventionally or atomic-powered, and the longer range matter of building warships of various kinds with nuclear power plants.

The United States some years ago made a start on a nuclear surface fleet but the Pentagon changed direction when costs began getting out of hand. The 85,000-ton Enterprise, world's first and only nuclear carrier, ran up a bill of $474 million.

But Seaborg reported to McNamara that technological progress had been so marked that four nuclear engines installed in the new carrier could furnish about as much power as the eight reactors that propel the Enterprise.

He also said that the new type engines could use atomic fuel with more than double the life expectancy of those used in the Enterprise's engines.

Navy studies that followed showed that the costs of installing atomic power plants were dropping and are expected to drop even more. The nuclear engines also are expected to improve in output of power and in simplicity.

The prospects are so hopeful that atomic experts in the AEC and the Navy are giving serious thought to the practicality of mounting nuclear engines in fighting ships as small as 4,500-ton guided missile destroyers.

McNamara's experts reportedly have estimated it would cost another $180 million to build the next carrier with atomic power. The Navy's calculations arrived at a figure nearly $60 million lower.

Bound up in the whole question is the future size of the Navy's powerful carrier forces.

There have been strong hints that key defense officials are inclined to cut the Navy attack carrier fleet from 15 vessels to perhaps 13.

They reason that the advent of long range missiles and Polaris missile-firing submarines has reduced the former importance of the carrier as a strategic weapon and that the cost of maintaining the carrier strike forces at their present levels is not justified by the contribution they can make to fighting limited war.

The Navy challenges this view contending that for the foreseeable future there is no readily available, powerful enough force comparable to the carrier task group to apply U.S. might in overcoming brush fire crises in far flung areas of the globe.

McNamara is reported to have proposed keeping the attack carrier force at 15 ships into 1970, then dropping one carrier a year for two years and leveling off at 13.

The Navy was said to have balked at going below 14 carriers until the shape of things to come is clearer.

United States and the Soviet Union.

But in his speech to the Bundestag, Adenauer emphasized that it is only friendship with the United States and other countries that gives Germans the right to expect that their country will one day be reunified.

Adenauer could look back on his 14 years as Germany's first and only postwar chancellor as an era of raising Germany from the ruins of World War II to a democratic nation of prosperity and military might allied with the West.

Der Alte — the old one — as Adenauer is called by Germans, gave up the chancellorship reluctantly under the pressure of his Christian Democratic party and the Free Democrats, junior partners in the government coalition. He is staying on as party chairman and a member of the Bundestag.

Adenauer thinks Erhard, 66, his economics minister and vice chancellor, lacks political acumen despite 14 years in the Cabinet.

Adenauer is a shrewd political realist who often made decisions without consulting his Cabinet. The jovial, cigar-chewing Erhard is an economist who plans to rely more on the judgment of his ministers in charting domestic and foreign policies.

Authoritative sources reported that Erhard agreed to take Erich Mende, leader of the Free Democrats, as his vice chancellor and to give Mende's party an extra seat in the 21-member Cabinet.

interests in newspaper publishing companies.

On the other hand, the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla., an oil man, was undisturbed by charges that his votes in favor of the oil industry amounted to a conflict of interest.

Kerr argued that he was voting the way his constituents wanted him to vote. "The only conflict of interest that has any significance for me," he said, "would be if my interest conflicted with the interests of the people I represent."

In the current situation, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., expressed hope that the Rules Committee would go beyond the Baker case and "recommend a permanent code of ethics for the Congress."

Javits told his colleagues that senators have a responsibility for their own conduct.

"This, I believe, is the main thing the country wants to hear from us: What are we going to do, not only about those who work here, but also about ourselves?" he added.

It would be interesting if Baker could come back to the Capitol long enough to check on the prospects of the Senate adopting the code that Javits asked.

That was Baker's main job—keeping in such close touch with the senators that he could tell how they intended to vote, or might be persuaded.

Anyone looking for a precedent in conflict of interest can find a famous one in the case of Daniel Webster of Massachusetts, 19th Century orator and statesman.

Sen. Webster once wrote Nicholas Biddle, president of the controversial Bank of the United States, "I believe that my retainer has not been renewed or refreshed as usual. If it be wished that my relation to the bank should be continued, it may be well to send me the usual retainers."

To Name New Prosecutor for Trial

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Garland Circuit Judge P. E. Dobbs, vacationing in Florida, said Monday that he approved of Prosecutor David Whittington's request that would appoint a special prosecutor to represent the state in the prosecution of Whittington's son.

David Whittington, Jr., 19, is charged with first degree murder in the beating Saturday of Mrs. Carolyn Brazil, 23, a waitress and mother of three children.

Dobbs told the Associated Press at Panama City, Fla., that he would probably appoint R. J. Glover, a former prosecutor, to handle the case.

Whittington requested that he be taken off the case in a special delivery mail message to Dobbs.

Young Whittington was arrested Saturday after Mrs. Brazil's body was found on a rural road near Hot Springs. He was taken to the state hospital later Saturday by his father and a deputy sheriff.

Monday the youth was ordered to undergo a 30-day mental examination.

The petition for the examination was presented by young Whittington's attorney, Garland County Rep. Ray Smith Jr. Smith told the court that the youth had been treated previously at the University of Arkansas Medical center for a mental condition.

County Judge Lon Warneke, acting for Dobbs, signed the committing order.

Hot Springs police would not say whether young Whittington had made a statement and no motive for the slaying has been revealed.

Sheriff Duffie Searcy said Mrs. Brazil had been beaten on the head with a large rock. She was found by Fred Gates, who was on his way to work at the Hot Springs Water Works.

Gates said as he passed by the body was in the road and a man was lying in a parked car nearby with his foot out the window. He said he notified authorities but when he returned the body had been moved to the side of the road and the car was gone.

The Hot Springs Sentinel-Record reported Mrs. Brazil was a native of Hope, having been born here May 10, 1940.

County Farm Agent

By CALVIN J. CALDWELL

Some real good news for the cattlemen of Hempstead concerns re-certification of the county as a Modified Certified Brucellosis area. I received a letter from Dr. David Ibsen, State Veterinarian, yesterday in which he stated that Hempstead county is on a Modified Certified Brucellosis (Bang's) area for the period of October 11, 1963 to October 11, 1966.

The certificate states that Brucellosis has been reduced to not more than one percent of the cattle in not to exceed five percent of the herds as indicated by official testing and other approved procedures conducted under the Cooperative State-Federal program. This is a real accomplishment for cattle owners of the county and makes the second three year period the county has been re-certified.

The county was first placed on a Modified Certified Brucellosis area when all cattle was tested in 1957.

Cattlemen Meet

The Hempstead County Beef Cattlemen's Association will meet on Thursday night, October 17 at 7:30 in the Diamond Cafe.

Anti-Smoke Aid Become Big Business

By JACK LEFLER

AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A new industry has emerged with the aim of helping smokers quit smoking.

With some medical authorities linking smoking with cancer and other diseases, the urge to quit smoking has grown. But paradoxically, the sale of cigarettes has increased, too.

"The smoker who wants to give up the habit can find an increasing number of aids in book and drug stores, where sales of anti-smoking products have grown into a big business.

Book stores stock such volumes as "The Painless Way to Stop Smoking," "The Consumers Union Report on Smoking and the Public Interest" and "Smoking and Health."

Drug stores sell such items to help stop smoking as "Nikoban," manufactured by M. R. Thompson & Co., Crawford, N.J.; "Ban-Smoke" chewing gum, Thompson Medical Co. Inc., New York; "Bantron," Company, Corp., Batavia, Ill., and "No-bacco," Approved Pharmaceutical Corp., Syracuse, N.Y.

Tobacco manufacturers report that sales of cigars and pipe tobacco are increasing. Some medical sources hold that smoking cigars and pipes is not as harmful as cigarettes.

The vending machine industry is acting to make its wares less available to minors. The machines are being moved from locations easily accessible to youngsters.

Cigarette advertising is being specifically aimed at adults. Tobacco ads have been withdrawn from college publications.

In Buffalo, N.Y., one of the nation's leading cancer research centers, Roswell Park Memorial Institute, is experimenting with a tobaccoless cigarette.

Part of this research will delve into the role, if any, of nicotine in the smoking habit. The institute recently started an experimental clinic for people who want to quit smoking. The smokers will be given drugs over several months.

Disarmament Plan May Be Nearing

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States and the Soviet Union put final touches today on a joint effort to ban nuclear weapons from outer space and clear the way for new disarmament negotiations.

The U.N. General Assembly's main political committee scheduled a double session on disarmament as the two big powers readied two resolutions couched in the new spirit of East-West amity.

One proposal, to be introduced by other members on behalf of Moscow and Washington, appeals to nations to refrain from putting nuclear weapons on orbiting space satellites.

The United States and Russia planned to propose the second resolution. It would press the Geneva Disarmament Committee to explore possibilities for a breakthrough on the question of complete disarmament.

The eight nonaligned members of the 17-nation Geneva Committee had two resolutions for assembly consideration. One was drawn in general terms and renewed the call for complete disarmament. It was not expected to stir up much discussion.

The other, dealing with the disputed question of underground testing, underwent last-minute revisions after Soviet and American arms experts objected to a preliminary draft. The resolution calls on the nuclear powers to round out the limited nuclear test ban treaty by halting nuclear weapon tests beneath the earth's surface.

The United States objected to the initial draft circulated by Yugoslavia because it failed to mention inspection safeguards. The Russians objected to mention of previous resolutions they did not like.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home announced after a meeting in New York Oct. 3 that their governments agreed in principle that the orbiting of nuclear weapons should be banned.

Double Price Cotton Plan May Be Out

By GORDON BROWN

WASHINGTON (AP)—A long-stalled bill to end the two-price system for cotton is beginning to show signs of life.

One member of the House Agriculture Committee said today there is a possibility the bill might be acted upon by the House in about two weeks.

The measure, hopelessly launched early this year, has run into numerous obstacles, the last being a fear by most supporters of the measure that the House wouldn't pass it in its present form.

The bill was okayed by the House Agriculture Committee last July and subsequently cleared by the Rules Committee for House consideration. But Chairman Harold D. Cooley, D-N.C., of the Agriculture Committee has not moved to have it called up for fear the House is hostile to the measure.

As now written the bill would, in effect, allow domestic mills to purchase U.S. cotton at the world price, which is 8½ cents a pound lower than the domestic supported price of 32½ cents.

Spokesmen for the domestic mills contend that without some such legislation they cannot compete with foreign mills and would have to turn more and more to synthetic fibers.

Some members of Congress, however, say the bill merely would pile another subsidy on the cotton program.

When the first was proposed last January the agriculture department suggested a domestic cotton subsidy — of 4 to 6 cents a pound, rather than 8½ cents.

But the committee decided on the 8½-cent payment, starting next August.

A new approach now has been suggested by Chairman E. C. Gathings, D-Ark., of the Cotton Subcommittee which began wrestling with the bill last December.

Gathings suggests that the domestic payment be tied, percentage-wise, to the export subsidy so that domestic mills could purchase U.S. cotton at the world price, plus not more than 15 per cent.

Thus, assuming the domestic price is 32½ cents and the world price 24 cents (leaving an export subsidy of 8½ cents) U.S. mills would be allowed to buy at 27.60 cents a pound.

Gathings said this would make the cost of the program about $150 million a year less than what it would be under the legislation as it now stands.

He said such a saving should pital. They had another weigh-in session and got measured for the first time.

Mary Ann, the smallest, weighed 3 pounds, 12 ounces and measured 16½ inches; Mary Magdalene weighed 4-10 and measured 17; Mary Catherine was 4-13 and 18½; Margaret was 5-1 and 18½; and James Andrew 6-1 and 19 inches.

Prosecutor Avoids Case Against Son

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Garland County Prosecutor David B. Whittington was to ask circuit court today that he not be required to prosecute his son, David Jr., on first degree murder charges.

Young Whittington, 19, is charged in the beating death of Mrs. Carolyn Brazil, 23, waitress in a Hot Springs tavern and a mother of three children.

Her body was found on a rural road a mile northwest of Hot Springs Saturday.

Whittington and a sheriff's deputy took David Jr. to the state hospital where he was to undergo a mental examination.

The prosecutor said his son previously had been treated at the University of Arkansas Medical Center in Little Rock for a mental condition.

Sheriff Duffie Searcy said Mrs. Brazil had been beaten on the head with a large stone. Her body was discovered by Fred Gates, 43, a maintenance man of the Hot Springs Municipal Water Co. as he was on his way to work.

Gates said when he passed, the body was in the road and a man was lying in a nearby car with his foot out the window.

Gates summoned officers but when they arrived at the scene, the body had been moved to the side of the road and the car was gone.

In a statement released Saturday, Whittington Sr. said he did not know the extent to which his son was involved but that he had instructed his chief deputy, Walter Wright, to take whatever steps he felt proper in the case.

Searcy said Mrs. Brazil was a native of Camden and had lived in Hot Springs about a year. She had been separated from her husband for three years, Searcy said.

Young Whittington, an only son, was on leave from the Navy.

make the bill much more acceptable to the economy bloc in the House.

He said it also should be acceptable to the Kennedy administration since it would make the domestic subsidy about 5 cents a pound—an amount within the range first proposed by the Agriculture Department.

Gathings said Cooley has expressed no opinion on the proposal other than to agree that the committee might well talk about it.

The bill, in its present form, also provides extra relief for the small cotton producer by giving him a slightly higher support price on the first 15 bales of production.

It also includes an amendment by Rep. Clifford G. McIntire, R-Maine, to reduce the cotton support price of cotton from 32½ cents a pound this year to 29 cents in 1966. Finally, it provides for a research program into ways of cutting cotton production costs.

Most women have more things to do than they can possibly manage and we are no exception. However, we were delighted to find there are other women who seem quite busy, as this following little poem indicates. Thanks to whoever sent it to us! We would like to pass it along.

On Monday, she lunched with the Housing Committee. With statistics and stew she was filled.
Then she dashed to a tea on "Crime in our City."
And she dined with the Church Ladies Guild.

On Tuesday, she went to a Baby's Week Luncheon and a tea on "Good Citizenship."

At dinner she talked to the Trade Union Bunch. There wasn't a date she dared to skip.

On Wednesday, she managed two annual dinners. One at noon and the other at night.

On Thursday, a luncheon on "Bootleg Sinners." And a dinner on "War... Is it Right?"

"World Problems we Face" was her Friday noon date. A luncheon address as you guessed.

And she wielded a fork, while a man from New York, spoke that evening on "Social Unrest."

On Saturday noon, she fell in a swoon.
Missed a talk on the "Youth of our Land."

"Poor thing... she was through. She never came to, But died with a spoon in her hand."

This exaggerated bit of nonsense has truth in it, and while most of us are not that busy, we all have days filled to the brim.

Some place along the line we hope you find time to do some shopping, if and when the collapse comes, it will be nice to pass out looking your best! We have a collection of fall clothes, that will take you to all the places. You will look like a picture of smartness, and no one will ever suspect that you did not have all the time in the world to plan your wardrobe.

THE BUS TO DANGER

By Helen Worden Erskine

Dear Helen: The driver of the bus I take to my sister's love the road has fallen in down with me. It all started last year when I went to spend the week-end with Sister. As I boarded the bus, its driver smiled at me and I at him. After that, whenever I took his bus, I'd sit on the front seat and he'd pass the time of day with me.

Last weekend Sister and I returned from a nine-day trip to the Coast. We drew the same bus driver. I sat on the front seat again. Between stops he asked me if I'd be his girl friend, said I could ride his bus for free. Being shy, I said no. Later, I learned he was married and, as I already knew, old enough to be my father (I'm just 18).

I'd like the free bus rides but what should I do if he starts asking for kisses in payment? He's nice to talk to, actually I feel closer to him than to my parents. They are always fighting. How can I keep him as a friend, not an admirer? —Wistful

Dear Wistful: Nix on the seriousness or what seems to be a nice little friendship will become something very awkward for you both. The bus driver evidently thinks you are very sweet and pretty and likes to see you blush. Hide in the back instead of the front of his bus and read a book or magazine.

He will probably tease you about moving to the rear. Just laugh and say you're changing seats because it's not safe for a bus driver to drive and talk at the same time.

Dismiss him from your thoughts when you leave his bus. Develop interests among those your own age at school, or work, or wherever you spend most of your time. Let your sister be a substitute for your parents since you already seem closer to her. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet, "Attentions from Married Men."

P.S. Insist upon paying your fare every time you ride that bus!

Dear Helen: Don't you think it downright wrong to spend all that money competing with Russia to get to the moon when every scientist agrees that there is nothing of value on the moon? I live in the Appalachian mountains where people are very poor. We sure could use some of that money here. —Forgotten

Dear Forgotten: I agree. We would gain a great propaganda victory over the Russians if we were to announce to the world that, instead of spending billions to reach the moon, we intend to spend the same amount helping underprivileged people in our own country. One only has to ride a B. & O. train through the mountains of West Virginia to see where some of that money could be used to advantage. Start the ball rolling by writing your Congressman and Senator.

Dear Helen: We are two junior high school students with a problem. Both are 13. We want to join a club which sponsors parties throughout the year. Every spring the members give a big dance and the girls invite boys to escort them. Is this proper? The dance is chaperoned by the parents of the girls. Also, how old do you think a girl should be before she is allowed to wear makeup. Would a light shade of lipstick be too bright to wear to school? —Nancy and Kathy

Dear Nancy and Kathy: Actually only your parents can tell you if this club and the parties it sponsors are proper. It certainly sounds so from what you have told me, but maybe you left something out.

The only makeup girls of 13 should consider is lipstick and even then it should only be with your parents' consent. Trust their judgment. A light amount of lipstick might be all right for school, depending on your community, though, if I were 13, I would wait a while. Since the point of makeup is to add brightness, why not wait until you really need it?

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Helicopters Rescue 200 From Dam

By WILLIAM MAIRANI

Associated Press Staff Writer BELLUNI, Italy (AP)—U.S. Army helicopters have snatched 200 residents from a village in a hazardous position on the banks of the Vaio Dam reservoir. Italian officials reported today.

The officials asked help from Army helicopters stationed in the area Sunday night because the village of Casso had been undermined by the catastrophic overflow of the reservoir last Wednesday. Officials feared the whole village might crash into the reservoir.

The Italian government formally convened a technical commission in Rome to investigate the disaster that may have taken 3,000 lives.

Public Works Minister Fiorentino Sullo ordered the inquiry body to check every person and paper connected with the dam since it was first planned years ago. He told the commission to prepare its report by Dec. 15.

There were recurrent reports of threats of new landslides coming down from the 6,000-foot Mt. Toc, on the south side of the reservoir. But officials at Erto denied that any new landslides had broken loose. Erto, like Casso, is on the northern side of the reservoir, opposite the mountain.

Pulaski Bar Will Probe L.R. Police

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Pulaski County Bar Association has appointed a committee to launch an investigation of the Little Rock Police Department. But police, city and even Bar Association officials don't know what will be investigated.

Steele Hays, Little Rock attorney named to head the committee said association president John B. Thurman apparently ordered the investigation, apparently because of recent publicity about conflict within the department.

City Manager Ancil Douthitt said he would like to know what the group is up to and added "When a n investigation is needed, we do it ourselves. Of course, we'd be glad to have their help and comments. But I just don't understand their purpose."

Hays said he assumed the investigation would be of the informative type because he knew of no legal action the group could take. Thurman said that the purpose of the study is "just to help and make recommendations."

Poll Taxes Drop in Franklin County

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Franklin County broke an almost solid upward trend in Arkansas poll tax payments today. It was the fifth of 52 counties which have reported to the state auditor a lower poll tax figure for 1963 than for the record year of 1960. The 52 counties have reported issuance of 353,279 receipts, $2,618 more than in 1960.

DAR Holds 2nd Meet of Year

The John Cain Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution held the second meeting of the year 1963-64 on Wednesday, October 9th at the Heritage House.

Mrs. George Peck, regent presided.

After the opening Ritual and the Pledge of Allegiance led by Mrs. J. J. Battle the Star Spangled Banner accompanied by Mrs. Ollis Blackwood was sung.

The usual order of business was then conducted by the regent with 16 members answering roll call. Mrs. Billy Bob Herndon and Mrs. Fred C. Marshall were welcomed into the chapter.

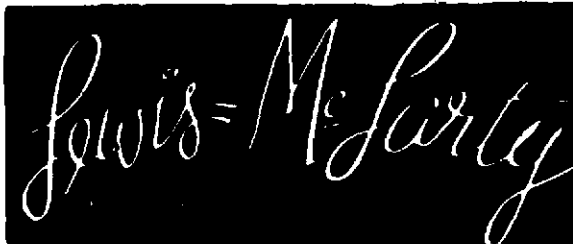

Mrs. Battle conducted a very interesting and informative instruction on the proper use of the flag and the use of which embodies our love and our loyalty for our country, for the truth of freedom and the Natural Rights of Man clearly and definitely stated by Jefferson in the Declaration of Independence.

The regent urged the use of the flag by all the members and the importance of the proper use at all times and places. Mrs. Haynes then read the President General's message and Mrs. Richards Howard program chairman for the meeting, read the inspiring Resolutions of the Continental Congress adopted at the National meeting last spring in Washington.

A project for publicizing and perpetuating the interesting history of Southwest Arkansas centered in old Washington and so ably promoted by Mrs. Haynes was adopted as the project for the year. Mrs. Ollis Blackwood was appointed chairman. Mrs. Haynes announced that the El Dorado Chapter of the DAR would visit Washington on Tuesday and invited the members of the John Cain Chapter to join them for luncheon. She also announced that during the first week of November Governor Faubus, with the Executive officers if the state will visit Washington and for that day, Washington will be declared the Capitol of Arkansas. —By Helen Ruffin Marshall, Assistant Publicity Chairman.

Texas No. 1, Victor Over Oklahoma

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Texas Longhorns, who've worked their way up step by step, took over the No. 1 spot today in The Associated Press poll of the nation's college football teams, leading a wholesale shuffling resulting from last weekend's stunning upsets.

The Longhorns finally climbed into the top spot by knocking off Oklahoma 28-7 Saturday. The Sooners had been rated the No. 1 team in the country going into the game.

Texas, rated No. 5 in the preseason balloting topped by 1962 national champion Southern California, made the top after moving a step at a time up the ladder. The Longhorns were fourth in the first regular poll, third in the next, and second a week ago. Oklahoma, leader for the past two weeks, skidded to No. 6.

The special panel of sports writers and broadcasters gave Texas 51 of 55 first place votes, after wading through the weekend wreckage that showed defeat for five of the teams in last week's Top Ten.

Besides Texas, the only other winner among the elite was Wisconsin, which bat Purdue 38-20 and jumped from fifth to second. Wisconsin got the four first place votes that didn't go to Texas.

Pitt advanced from sixth to third while Mississippi jumped from 10th to fifth. Both were idle Saturday.

In addition to the defeat of the Sooners, Alabama was upset by Florida, 10-6; Southern Methodist bumbled Navy, 32-28; Southern California was beaten 17-14 by Notre Dame; and Penn State was downed by Army, 10-7. Ohio State was tied by Illinois, 20-20.

Southern California, which led the first week but then was beaten by Oklahoma, dropped clear out of the Top Ten. The Trojans were No. 7 last week. Penn State, ninth a week ago, also dropped out.

The Top Ten, with first place votes in parentheses and total points on the 10-9-8-etc. basis:

Team	Points
1. Texas (51)	546
2. Wisconsin (4)	487
3. Pittsburgh	413
4. Ohio State	235
5. Mississippi	218
6. Oklahoma	191
7. Illinois	147
8. Georgia Tech	146
9. Alabama	145
10. Tie, Navy and Northwestern	103

Sleeper Play Protested by Tennessee

By MIKE BARRON
Associated Press Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Tennessee Athletic Director Bob Woodruff calls it a "sleeper" play. Georgia Tech Athletic Director Bobby Dodd says Tennessee's defense just went to sleep.

Charges and counter-charges are flying in what is developing into the Southeastern Conference's biggest football controversy since the famous Paul Bryant - Wally Butts telephone call.

The object of the furor is a 54-yard touchdown pass play in Georgia Tech's 23-7 victory over Tennessee in Knoxville last Saturday.

The play came about in this manner. Tech end Ted Davis did not return to the huddle after a pass from quarterback Billy Lottbridge fell incomplete. The Tennessee defense did not notice him and on the next play he was alone to receive Lottbridge's pass for a touchdown to put Tech ahead 13-0 just 25 seconds before the first half ended.

On Sunday Woodruff filed an

3 Ailing as Hogs Drill for Texas

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — University of Arkansas football trainer Bill Ferrell said Monday that Tommy Brashear and George Rea Walker were still on the doubtful list for the Arkansas-Texas game in Little Rock, Saturday.

Ferrell said he would know more on Thursday about whether Walker would be able to play. The Razorbacks went through light workouts Monday with only one player, tackle Jim Williams, in pads. Coach Frank Broyles said Williams, who has been out with a foot injury announced that he was ready to play.

Seven coaches watched as Williams went through his drills. "We're just trying to see if he really is well," Broyles said.

Broyles said grades were too low during the Baylor game last Saturday to mention any standouts in the game.

Denies Slur Meant for Ex-Coach

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Brown bristles when it is suggested that the Cleveland Browns are playing inspired football just to show up ex-coach Paul Brown.

"There is no animosity in us at all," the Cleveland fullback told the New York Quarterback Club Monday. "We're not trying to prove anything about Paul, except that we can play football."

"I sort of feel sorry for him (Paul). He is a proud man. He was a great coach."

Jimmy said Blanton Collier, the club's new coach, had instilled a new attitude and a new philosophy into the team. He pointed out that many of Paul Brown's plays were retained.

Naturally, Jimmy had some official protest with Southeastern Conference Commissioner Bernie Moore, charging that Georgia Tech deliberately violated the rules which required a player to return to within 15 yards of the ball after a play.

Woodruff said the complaint was "our responsibility when rules or ethics are violated without the officials on the field taking action."

Jim McDonald, Tennessee head coach, charged that the play not only violated a rule but violated a "gentlemen's agreement" among SEC coaches not to use a "sleeper" or "confuse opponents."

Dodd got his dander up when he read about the protest. Calling Woodruff "the worst public relations man in the football profession," he charged that Tennessee was trying to ease the sting of defeat and take away from Tech's victory. He emphatically denied that Tech uses a "sleeper" play.

"I wonder if Woodruff has realized we could give him the touchdown he calls 'unethical' and give him one more, and still have beaten his Tennessee Vols 10-7," Dodd said. Tennessee is Dodd's alma mater.

At 27, He's Freshman, Grid Player

By BILL BOYARSKY

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Charles Johnson is a 27-year-old college freshman football player with a wife and 12 kids to cheer him on.

He also has an 80-acre farm with pigs, cows, sheep and a horse.

Chuck is a new student at American River Junior College near Sacramento — the first step in his long-delayed goal of becoming a school teacher.

He's a starting defensive tackle on the Beavers' football team manned, for the most part, by boys up to nine years his junior.

"They call me pappy," says the 5-9, 234-pound Johnson. "But the only time my age really bothers me is when we have to do the long distance runs. That's the only time I lag behind."

Chuck and his wife, Tonia, 27, were married when they were 15. They have six children of their own — Judith, 10; Sue, 7; Connie, 5; Stanley, 4; Steven, 3; and Carney, a seven-month old boy.

Six other youngsters live with them, teen-age boys released to their custody from the county juvenile hall.

The boys live at the ranch on the outskirts of Sacramento. The Johnsons like youngsters and think the farm makes a good home for them.

Johnson got out of the Army at 18, pumped gasoline at a service station for five years, sold insurance for a year and then returned home to take over the family ranch when his father died.

"I've been trying to go back to school for nine years," he said. "What really fired me up was when my church, the Church of Christ, started talking about opening a Christian school in Sacramento. I want to be a teacher."

To get teaching credentials, he is up before 6 a.m. along with the others for breakfast and chores.

He is at school at 7 a.m. to do homework and attend classes until 11 a.m. Then it's back to the ranch to work.

At 3 p.m. Johnson returns to school for three hours of football practice.

One night a week, he attends class and on other evenings, does church work.

With all that, why football? He likes sports. And, if he works hard, Johnson thinks he might have a chance for an athletic scholarship to help pay for his education at a four-year college.

remarks to make about Sam Huff, the Giants' middle linebacker who usually keys on him.

"I looked down at my ankles so many times and saw No. 70 (Huff's number) that we're going to have to do something about him in the beginning of the game next time." Brown looked at Huff in the audience and added, "You had a good first half."

Brown said the publicity of his personal duel with Huff had been great and admitted there had been a little flare-up now and then.

"We've played against one another for six years," said Jimmy. "And we had words once or twice. Two scrapes in six years isn't bad."

Oklahoma Drops Star Halfback

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The University of Oklahoma football team became the object of nationwide surprise for the second time in three days Monday when star halfback Joe Don Looney was dropped from the squad for disciplinary reasons.

The first surprise came Saturday, when the Sooners, then rated No. 1, were soundly outplayed by Texas and defeated 28-7.

Coach Bud Wilkinson declined to comment on the incident. He would not say if the loss to Texas had anything to do with the dismissal of the 224-pound speedster from Fort Worth, Tex.

But Looney's father, Don Looney, a star end for Texas Christian in the late 1930s, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that Wilkinson telephoned him to say:

"I am sorry it happened. He had lots of ability, but he had some bad practices last week, and we decided that this cost us the ball game."

Looney's father said his son had a sore foot last week which hampered him in practice.

The elder Looney told the Star-Telegram that Wilkinson said the OU senior football players had taken a vote and decided they could do better without his son.

A newsman was told by OU end John Flynn, Looney's roommate, that the big senior had moved out of the dormitory and headed for a relative's home in Kansas.

Rumors had persisted for some time that such a move was brewing. Looney reportedly was the object of some displeasure from the coaching staff when he skipped spring training to try out for the track team.

Harper May Be Arkansas Party Head

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval F. Faubus said in a news conference today he might ask Tom Harper of Fort Smith to take the vacant post of Democratic national committeeman for Arkansas.

Harper now is state chairman of the Democratic Party and the governor said he would prefer that Harper give up this job if he becomes national committeeman. But he indicated he would be willing for Harper to hold both positions.

A question was raised whether it would be legal for Harper to hold both jobs. Faubus said this may be possible.

Faubus said Harper would be a natural as national committeeman because he is "a well-known party man in national circles."

But Faubus said he would want whoever takes the post to understand that the national committeeman will not be able to speak for him (Faubus) in national meetings.

"I mean by this he cannot commit me to things that I do not intend to do," Faubus said.

Harper has been a relatively strong supporter of the national party during a period in which the state party quite frequently has taken a divergent path.

Harper became state chairman shortly after Faubus got the Democratic nomination for governor in 1954.

He Goes for a Ride in Sports Racer

By JACK HEWINS
Associated Press Sports Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — I rode r-r-recently with P-P-Parnelli J-Jones.

"Don't bother with a helmet," said Rufus Parnelli Jones. "You don't need it." The quiet confidence of the man who won the Indianapolis 500 and the Pikes Peak hill climb was so reassuring I lowered my voice — and asked for a helmet.

I happened to know that, for all his fame, Parnelli Jones never had driven in a sports car race. Perhaps Parnelli should have been nervous, too. His passenger never had ridden in a racing sports car.

There it was at our feet, looking something like a red bathtub made for a small person who liked privacy.

Rufus Parnelli Jones scooped down into the cockpit and motioned for me to join him. One requirement of the racing sports car is that it have two seats, but that ends the specification. My seat must have had an honorable career as a scoop shovel before losing its handle.

We learned immediately there was room for only three legs under the hood, and I insisted politely that Parnelli keep both his inside in case they were needed for acceleration and braking. I got my right leg completely in. The left made the trip masquerading as a bent pin. I could peek around the knee and see through the four-inch-high windshield whenever I dared.

Away we went. Racing being over for the day, things were rather informal at the track. Cars were crossing from the infield but a traffic officer gave us a gap and we romped into the first turn with our Coventry Climax power sounding like a stirred-up hornet's nest as Jones walked on the gas pedal.

It was then I discovered an oversight. Parnelli's upholstered seat was equipped with a safety belt. My scoop shovel wasn't. I felt airborne.

As we made the first huge loop my left hand sought something to grip and found only a too-hot pipe. I was scratching for finger nail purchase when we plunged down a hill and the world's nastiest double-hairpin curve loomed dead ahead.

We downshifted; Parnelli calmly, I desperately; and I felt rather proud that I got us around that big S without a steering wheel or stick shift of my own. In the process I located a hole in the dash-board just large enough for my right forefinger.

Safely anchored now as we toolled over the backstretch hills, I was beginning to enjoy it when Parnelli touched my knee and pointed ahead. Puttering down the middle of the track was a man on a small motorbike. He cast a startled look over his shoulder and zigged. We zagged.

I let my breath out slowly but had to reclaim it with a gasp as we whipped around the final turn into the home stretch.

And went around again. This time the bends and lifts and drops were familiar but Jones boosted the RPM and slammed into the turns with the gears growling and came out with the Lotus trying to run from under us.

As we pulled to a stop I asked Parnelli what our top speed had been and he shrugged: "Aw, it wasn't very fast." Honestly, it was at least...

Aw, you'd never believe it.

U.A. Groups Urge Public Hearing

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Two opposing University of Arkansas political groups issued a joint statement Sunday urging the school and striking employees to "publicly air" their differences.

The statement was issued by Pat O'Conner of Little Rock, president of the Young Republican Club and Curtis Rickard of Paron (Saline County), president of the Young Democrats.

The statement said the university and the strikers should take action immediately to end their conflict, allowing employees to return to their jobs and "returning... order to the areas of University services affected."

Approximately 75 non-teaching employees, members of Local 965 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Workers (AFL - CIO), went on strike Oct. 4 for higher wages and more job security.

The statement said the uni-

BADEN - BADEN, Germany (AP) — The Olympics' executive board, meeting for the 60th time in 67 years, found itself in the cold war today up to its stop-watch pocket.

President Avery Brundage of Chicago warned everyone concerned that the International Olympic Committee will fight against any efforts to use "political weapons" in the field of sports.

Break-up of the present "all German" Olympic team, and as a consequence, give West Berlin special status with its own team.

Some action to ostracize nations such as France, which choose not to sign the pledge against nuclear bomb testing.
